Field Mass Attracts 5,000; Mrs. Blanche Miller Rev. Fr. Hesburgh Calls For AmericansToBeEmancipators

Before a strikingly adorned altar erected on the Eternal Light Peace Memorial, Bishop George L. Leech of the Harrisburg Diocese, clad in crimson vestments, celebrated a pontifical Field Mass Saturday noon for 5,000 thousand people, including General and Mrs. Eisenhower, Archbishops Patrick O'Boyle of Washington, D. C., and Lawrence J. Shehan of Baltimore and Bishops William Connare of Greensburg and John J. Russell of Richmond, Va.

A brilliant crimson and gold canopy was erected along the shaft of the Peace Memorial, and hundreds of red petunias and white mums stretched across the front of the monument contrasting with a similax runner. Vases of gold chrysanthemums and red glads also decorated the altar. FR. HESBURGH SPEAKS

In his address, following the mass, Rev. Fr. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., president of the University of Notre Dame, made a dramatic call for freedom for the Negro. After reciting the events associated with Father William Corby's administration of general absolution to all the troops who fought at Gettysburg, he said that the Civil War was fought for freedom, "specifically for the freedom of Negro Americans.'

Father Hesburgh called on all Americans to become great emancipators, like Abraham Lincoln. "Moral issues," he said, "must be recognized and acknowledged in individual hearts and consciences. The appalling death f freedom for millions of Negro Americans, today, in voting, in employment, in housing, in education, in public accommodations and in the administration of justice, is not something automatic. It is a positive act: it is freedom denied from one American to another American, and until every white American decides to act morally towards every Negro American, there is no end to the unfinished business."

COLORFUL PROCESSION

Story Illustrates Manner Modern War Correspondent Would Have Reported Fight

EDITOR'S NOTE-One hundred years ago one of history's climactic battles was fought in the rolling countryside outside a small Pennsylvania town called Gettysburg. Here is the way a reporter on the scene might have coverd the events which led up to one of the bloodiest military engagements of all time.

By TOM HENSHAW

CETTYSBURG, July 1, 1863 (AP)-Advance units of the Union and Contederate armies clashed by accident around this small South-Central Pennsylvania town today.

The outnumbered Federal forces were driven back into defensive positions on high ground south of Gettysburg, a town of 2,400 some 65 miles north of Wash-

A major battle was forecast for tomorrow as Maj. Gen. George G. Meade, the new commander of the Army of the Potomac, ordered most of his 88,000 men into the battlefront.

It's a lament too for some of the great tunes in American show business. Things like Jerome Kerns "Ol Man River" and Stephen Foster's "Old Black Joe."

For guileless, wonderful folklore comedy like Marc Connelly's delightful "Green Pastures.

For immortal bits of literary fluff like Joel Chandler Harris' inimitable Uncle Remus stories and Roark Bradford's tales.

For if the state Department of Public Instruction is serious about its communique urging all public schools in Pennsylvania to refrain from the performance of blackfaced minstrel shows as "derogatory, offensive, disrespectful and degrading," something great has gone out of American life.

Having shunted the Bible and religion out of the classroom, must the schools rule out merriment and nostalgia. endmen and wisecracks? What a grey, dull world tomorrow's students face! No more soft shoe taps . . . no more lazy drawls . . . no more dialect humor.

The minstrel was a genuine bit of Americana. It focused more often than not on some of the most praiseworthy attributes of the Negro - his simplicity, his liveliness, his innate good humor, his easy grace, his rhythm, his love of song and the happy, carefree aspects of life. The minstrel show was full of mirth, sunshine and optimism. Race hardly mattered. How odd that, in the one area where the Negro's talent carried him to the heights of stardom, where people marvelled at his way with jazz, his songs and dances, the one place where the Negro had the equality of excellence is under fire as "insulting and degrad-

MYSTERY OF IRISH DERBY

DUBLIN (AP)-The men who run Irish racing called an emergency meeting today to probe the great Ralko mystery.

The question: Was Relko, Europe's best three-year-old colt, incapacitated by drugging to produce his withdrawal just before the start of Saturday's $186,200 Irish Sweeps Derby.

Officials of the Curraugh race track at first blamed Relko's sudden lameness to natural causes.

But newspaper commentators. pointing to similarities with drugging on British tracks, were inclined to suspect that the colt got that to save the handbooks a massive beating.

The French-owned Relko, the 11-8 favorite, looked fine in the paddock and appeard a virtual certainty to repeat his easy Epsom Derby success.

Yves St. Martin, champion French jockey who was to have ridden Relko, said the horse began to move badly on the way to the starting gate.

"Relko was going prfectly until we reached the start" St. Martin said. "Then suddenly he seizd up. He could hardly even walk, and certainly would not even have W. L. Pct. G.B. trotted. I knew it was out of the question for him to run."

The announcement that Relko was withdrawn came only seconds before the race was off. Big bettors lost thousands in 61/2 bets placed before the race day 81/2 Thos who backed Rlko on the course had their money returned. And under Irish rules those who backed Ragusa, the winner, had their winnings but by half because the withdrawal left no time to st up more realistic odds.

Within a few hours Relko was perfectly fit again. Sunday morning he was out for exercise and will be returned to France Tuesday.

Th actor was comparing the "The Beverly Hillbillies," with his own show, "Empire." The latter was dropped, although it will return as a half-hour fashioned around Egan's character and called "Redigo." He portrays. Jim Redigo, a ranch foreman.

MOVED FAMILY

A lot of Egan's blood and sweat went into "Empire." In an effort to achieve realism for the hourlong contemporary western, nearly all of it was filmed in and around Santa Fe, N.M. Egan moved his wife and younger daughter there.

"That was the only way I could see anything of them," he said. "I found myself working 17-and 19-hour days, and on Saturday and Sunday, too "Last fall I workd for 47 straight days without a day off." FORMIDABLE OPPOSITION

Reasons for cancellation of the show are clouded in networksponsor politics. "Empire" faced the formidable opposition of Red Skelton, but Egan said the ratings were respectable, even coming within a few points of a Judy Garland special. "Empire" had format troubles and dropped its two female stars in mid-season. Egan explained "Terry Moore's character couldn't integrate with the show. It was jarring to be doing a heavy drama, then cut to a shot of her beside her swimming pool. "As for Lucia, owner of the Garret ranch (played by Anne Seymour) it was a matter of her relation to Redigo. People resented his having to ask her if he could move some sheep to Montana, right after he had been involved in some violent action he had settled himself." Egan said "Empire" had been cool, dressy.

The adversaries: the rich, storied Union Pacific Railroad, a kind of Goliath in present circumstances, and the poor-relation Chiago & North Western Railway, the David of the piece.

Guiding the North Western's lingshot is Ben W. Heineman, board chairman since 1956 and widely regarded in the industry as an unusually bold and resourceful executive.

Heineman startled the railroad world on Monday with a handsome $115-million offer in stock. income bonds and cash for the Rock Island.

SURPRISE GREAT

The surprise was the greater because of its timing-three days before Rock Island directors were to pass on an earlier, tempting and conflicting offer from the Union Pacific, raildom's No. 1 moneymaker.

Closer observers thought they detected some wavering in Rock Island ranks, but on Thursday Rock Island directors voted for the Union Pacific and spurned Heineman's tender.

"We intend to move right ahead with our proposal to Rock Island stockholders," said Heineman Friday. In this, he would be asking shareowners to repudiate the judgment of their elected directors.

The fact that one may not agree with some of his social philosophy, and may at times have been irritated by his militant and uncompromising statesmanship does not subtract from the basic fact that he is a great man.

HIS REAL NAME is David Green. He was born in Poland, October 16, 1886 He has always considered himself an author. He adopted David Ben-Gurion as a pen name in 1910, when he became editor of a Zionist magazine entitled "Achdut" (Unity) which was the official organ of the socialist wing of the Zionist movement. Four year earlier he had moved to Palestine from Poland. In 1913 he decided he could not, as an editor cope with and "outwit the Turkish pashas and effendis" without a legal education. He enrolled in the Ottoman University in Constantinople, now Istanbul

The Turks, entering World War I on the side of the Germans, deported him in 1915. He came to the United States and married a Miss Paula Munwess, a medical student whom he met in New

CONFIDENT that any future Jewish nation in Palestine was dependent upon a British victory, Ben-Gurion went to Canada and enlisted as a private in the 39th Battalion of the Royal Fusiliers. As a result, he served as a non-commissioned officer in General Allenby's Army in the Palestine campaign against the Turks. It was the phase of World War I that ousted the Turkish overlords.

BEN-GURION'S most productive years as an editor and author followed World War I. He and his associates in the Zion movement had hoped for a better status than that of a mandated domain under the old League of Accordingly, most of his articles and books were dedicated to a singleness of purpose that limited the circulation and sales to one major subject in one language. It is for this reason that he is known in America largely for his post World War I statesmanship more than for his intellectual power and forcefulness with the typewriter.

Nor have his duties as prime minister of an often embattled, infant Republic kept him from authorship. His five volume work, "The Struggle," 1949, and "Israel at War," 1950, are most often mentioned, but they are not listed in the accumulative indexes as published in English. He is considered a keen student of the Greek classics and an exceptionally sharp philosopher.

HIS CAREER as a prime minister of struggling, infant nation, beset on all sides by enemies who have fought to destroy it, has been in the headlines

The POWER of FAITH By WOODI ISHMAEL

At St. Josephs Academy in Jasper, Indiana, Robert W. Greene dreamed dreams of telling Chinese boys and girls the story of the life of Jesus. The dream persisted, and in 1937 Father Robert W. Greene, Maryknoll missioner, went to China to serve for 15 years in the village of Tung-an, Kwangsi, Province of South China.

The last 21/2 years he lived, by the power of his faith, under Chinese communist terror. His mission became an army headquarters; his chapel a prison, and he was put under house arrest. Later he was imprisioned on communist charges of espionage. Taunted as a spy, he underwent days of questioning, and once barley escaped the firing squad. He showed such little concern when sentenced to be beheaded that the officials thought he was on the verge of losing his mind. The following day, his sentence was changed to expulsion from China forever. But Father Greene comments: "This much I know, If we are able to return any time in the next 10 or 20 years, Christians will greet us with tears of joy."

Royal Palace Safe Distance From Peekers

LONDON (AP) - A chambermaid stood at a window of Buckingham palace and waved a white handkerchief. Half a mile away detectives peered through telescopes and were delighted by what they saw: An indistinct This was the drill performed by the Royal Security guard several months ago to satisfy themselves that London's skyscraper boom was NOT turning Queen Elizabeth's London residence into a peekaboo palace,

They were unable to distinguish one face from another even with the aid of various optical instruments. They tried telescopic camera lenses and were unable to take pictures that reached into the palace windows. The glass blurred the image.

Thus the latest of London's skyscrapers, and the most crucially situated, passed the security test. It is the 30-story London Hilton, a new hotel bordering Hyde Park. The hotel management has assured the palace it will keep a sharp lookout for guests with an unusual amount of camera equipment. Security officials were equally concerned at crackpots (AP) — Coronary heart disease The first phase was to check toward solving our problem," he The problem with the teacher salary and subsidy bills occurred this way: The subsidy bill was designed to provide $30 million to match the estimated $30 million cost of the salary boost the first year. It was recognized that some districts paying low salaries present ly would not make enough in subsidies to finance the higher increases, but the actual impact in some areas apparently was not realized until last week. Some legislators estimated the additional cost for affected districts at $14 million.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

LANCASTER GIRL GIVEN STATE CROWN

19-year-old brown-haired, blueeyed lass from Lancaster who hopes for a career in business, is Miss Pennsylvania of 1963.

Donna Louise Loar, a 1961 graduate of Conestoga Valley High School, won the title Saturday night and the right to enter the Miss America contest later this year in Atlantic City.

She won over 17 other contestants from nearly every section of Pennsylvania.

WORKS AS ACCOUNTANT

Miss Loar, who was Miss Lancaster County, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs Carl Loar, and works in the accounting department for Radio Corporation of America.

Miss Loar, who stands 5-foot-5 and has measurements of 34-23-36, won the bathing suit and talent competition Friday night in the two-day judging at the Phillips Memorial Hall. Runnerup was Cheryl Kegley,
